“Medicine & Health 2007” – Newly released course catalogue for medical doctors and health professionals

Vienna, October 2006; “medicine & health”, „the“ guide for advanced postgraduate training in health care has just been published. The 2,500 leading-edge courses and programmes (both national and international) were selected from the vast number of training options available, according to timeliness and present needs in the health care sector.

The most important options for further training are presented, ranging from postgraduate courses to masters programmes and conferences. This is international continuing education and advanced training at its highest level:

- 2,500 events from 66 countries, offered by
- 700 renowned universities, international organisations and institutions of higher education
- 150 weblinks to specific websites, as well as a list of scientific journals
- 20 articles on current health issues and background information on „best of“ advanced training at national, regional and international level

“medicine & health“ is a guide and “pathfinder“ for advanced training and career planning for health professionals in the field. The theme of the course catalogue is “Set the course for your career“ and targets medical doctors of all disciplines, nurses, decision makers in health care, staff of social and non-profit organisations, with a special focus on experts in international development cooperation and humanitarian aid. In addition, the catalogue contains high-ranking scientific articles, which are a valuable supplement and act as background information to the courses.

The training courses are categorised according to the following subjects:

- hospital organisation, information technology & management
- medicine – interdisciplinary approach, nutrition, oncology, pain and palliative care
- medical disciplines from anaesthesia to tropical medicine
- public health, epidemiology, health promotion, health economics
- evidence-based medicine and research
- disaster and humanitarian aid > international missions
- international cooperation > international missions

The courses are presented clearly and concisely, indicating the subjects covered, required qualifications and terms of registration, as well as information on the provider.
